

The unofficial Port Vale FC summer transfer window bingo card

Any claim that the Vale have "run out of money"	Any linking of the club with completely unrealistic targets	Seeking the return of any player who has previously played for Vale	Moaning because another club have signed a highly rated player
Using stats from an obscure website to make a case about a player	Posting a YouTube highlights clip of an obscure player and urging Vale to "sign him up"	Treating a Twitter transfer rumour as absolute gospel	Moaning when any Vale signing is of a relatively unknown player
The inevitable "I saw player x" in the Port Vale car park rumour	Revisionist rewriting of any player who left us recently as some sort of world beater	Believing what fans of his former club say on a forum about a new Port Vale signing	Complaining about the squad size when there's still weeks before the season starts
Getting upset when any rumour, no matter how unlikely turns out to be untrue	Touting a player as a "good signing" based solely on their performance against us and not the whole season (AKA as Shane Tudor syndrome)	Anyone who claims that they are "in the know"	Claiming a move is going to happen "today" only for nothing at all to happen